

Anna Glynn, Above and Below
Dry Tortugas National Park

Seeing with Fresh Eyes

Albert Bierstadt

Cho-looke, the Yosemite Fall, 1864

A woman with dark hair, wearing a colorful striped sweater and light-colored pants, is playing a violin in a lush green forest. The background features tall, thin trees and prominent red rock cliffs. The scene is captured from a low angle, making the woman appear to be standing on a grassy slope. The overall atmosphere is serene and inspiring.

Art Inspires

Rachel Panitch, Composer
Zion National Park

“Excuse me, Lewis and Clark did not discover this land. We were here,” Lin recalls one of the tribal elders telling her when they met with her in New York. “That was it. I had to do this project.”

Maya Lin, Listening Circle
Lewis and Clark National Historic Trail

New England Trail

National Scenic Trail
Connecticut/Massachusetts
National Park Service
U.S. Department of the Interior

Within These Walls Lenora Lee Dance
Angel Island Immigration Station

Role of Artists

- Activating
- Designing
- Interpreting
- Engaging

Getting Started

Art is always an Event

The programs are also the art.

The Artist Never Works Alone

Partners and collaborators are force multipliers.

You Can and Should Design the Audience

Building new social relations is part of the art.

The Temporary Work Lives On

Multiple sites, documentation, storytelling.